Prairie Sunrise-Sierra Dawn 2014-08-16 Prairie Sunrise is the photographic diary of one little girl in the wide Montana prairie. About a hundred years ago, a man from Kansas rode the train to Eastern Montana. He built his family a log cabin on the prairie.

Today, his great great granddaughter watches the sun rise and set over those same prairies and ponders her place in the shifting tapestry of the seasons and the land with its plants, critters, and people.

Fiery Passion-Dawn Luedecke 2018-09-11 Passion and honor collide in the wild and rugged American West, where one woman's love of adventure is matched by her desire for one man . . . Victoria Harrison had no desire to marry to secure her position as heir to her family's lumber business. And she doesn't want to seek a man's help now. But with her prized Great Mountain Lumber Mill threatened by one of her father's old enemies, she needs an ally. She's found one in Wall Adair, the handsome new leader of the notorious gang of rivermen known as the Devil May Cares. It takes a lot of guts to run the biggest mill this side of the Rocky Mountains, and Wall admires Victoria's determination to do it on her own terms. With each day they spend together, he uncovers a vulnerability hidden deep behind her strong façade. Wall has a duty to uphold—one that'll soon call him away from the freedom he loves and back to his family's ranch. Until then, he'll protect the boss lady with every ounce of his strength . . . knowing the devil himself can't keep him from losing his heart . . . "Well written, well researched. Like the river, this plot runs faster and faster. Readers won't be able to put it down." —New York Times bestselling author Jodi Thomas on White Water Passion

Simpson 1992 "Elizabeth Simpson has written this first comprehensive, book-length study of Ivan Doig's work for Doig fans as well as for scholars. While the central focus is Doig's work, Simpson also suggests new ways western writing can be examined in terms of folklore, history, landscape, and style. Well-known Doig novels including This House of Sky, Run with Me Mariah, Montana, Winter Brothers, English Creek, and The Sea Runners are analyzed separately with attention to structure, narrative strategy, theme, character, pace, tone, and informing metaphors. Recurrent motifs that bind Doig's work into a canon are also explored. The reader is introduced to changes in folklore studies in the past few decades followed by an examination of the impact these changes have had on literature. Doig's use of folklore to develop character and theme, to regulate pace and tension, also allows him to paint the life of the region he is writing about. As well, Doig's use of folklore suggests ways to link the history of the West with a meaningful present. Doig's writing also emphasizes the interrelationships between landscape and the people who live in it." "In the second part of this study, Elizabeth Simpson addresses the concept of profane and sacred space and adversity as means that western writers use to perceive the relationship between character and landscape. The classic western myth of the solitary hero against the wilderness is not the focus of contemporary western writing where, instead, "community" takes on special meaning. One of the prevalent contemporary themes is the physical and psychological danger of isolation." "While individually Doig's books may differ from each other, they form a distinct corpus because the author's use of context informs the text. As Elizabeth Simpson concludes after examining Doig's style, "Doig is, in the most inclusive sense of the term, a regional writer: one who weaves the history, the landscape, the folklore, the language of his home place into stories that articulate major themes in American life."--BOOK

Montana Horse Racing-Brenda Wahler 2019-09-02 For centuries, on prairie grasslands, dusty streets and racing ovals, everyday Montanans participated in the sport of kings. More than a century after horses arrived in the region, Lewis and Clark's Nez Perce guides staged horse races at Traveler's Rest in 1806. In response to hazardous street races, the Montana legislature granted communities authority to ban "immoderate riding or driving." Helena led the way to respectable racing, with Madam Coady's fashion course hosting the first territorial fair in 1868. Soon, leading citizens like Marcus Daly built oval tracks and glitzy grandstands. By 1890, a horse named Bob Wade set a world record for a quarter mile in Butte, a mark that stood until 1958.

Horsewoman and historian

Seamus Donegan is heading for Montana Territory with his new bride when war erupts in the Black Hills of Dakota.

Sitting bull and Crazy horse have defied the federal Government and refused to lead the wild tribes of the Northern Plains onto the reservation, and Washington decides to end the Indian problem once and for all.

Donegan joins us with General George Cook who is leading the 2nd and 3rd Cavalry and a rough-and-tumble band of scouts and interpreters into the bloody battle. For Seamus Donegan and the men on the front lines, the long fight in the bitter cold of winter will be one of loneliness and fear--a struggle for survival that will not end, even with the swift and successful assault on the enemy stronghold. For in the ashes on the snow, in the fury of defeated warriors, the seeds are sown for a new and even bloodier chapter in the Indian Wars.
