EXCERPT When he arrives at my home around six o'clock, I've had time to regain my calm and mentally prepare myself for whatever happens next. At least that's what I think, until he speaks and I have to blink to make sure I hear him correctly, that I'm not dreaming. Well, I hope I didn't hear him correctly. "You told me how much you liked documentaries about insects. Well, guess what? I bought tickets for the eight-thirty showing of a fascinating documentary about ants," he says, apparently proud of his idea. I wonder if my face expresses the extent of my dismay. Watching a documentary about insects is equivalent to an hour climbing up and down stairs, both at the bottom of my list of favorite activities. I distinctly remember mentioning how much they bore me when he told me about the documentary he had seen on opal extraction in Australia. So, unless he has a memory problem, I don't see what he's trying to accomplish. When I meet his gaze, I understand. He isn't trying to seduce me; he wants to push me to confess I'm lying. Except it's not going to happen, I can watch a one-hour documentary without flinching. We'll see if he wears the same satisfied expression when his plan fails. "What a great idea," I say with a smile. "An hour to learn something new is perfect. Ants are a fascinating species." "Then you'll be even happier to know it's a two-and-a-half-hour documentary." "Excuse me?" The words slipped out before I had the time to restrain myself, but seriously, it's not possible. Nobody is crazy enough to watch such a long documentary at the cinema. At home, maybe—you can pause, get up every five minutes, drink a glass of wine, play with your phone—but at the cinema? No way! I'm on the brink of abandoning the fight, but seeing his self-satisfied grin, I pull myself together. "Even better! Unless you don't like documentaries. If you're only doing it for me, we can do something else together." This time, I have no doubt about his intentions. His mischievous air tells me everything I need to know. "No, I love documentaries. Plus, what matters to me most is that you remember me as soon as possible, and I'm willing to do anything to make it happen." The question is whether I am willing to do whatever it takes to exact my revenge. But it's too early to give up, so, I don't stomp my heel on his foot as I want to. Instead, I keep my cool and accept the hand he holds out. "Perfect. I'll follow you."

Bring the Noise-Simon Reynolds 2009-04-02 An anthology of writings spanning Simon Reynolds's extraordinary career as a music writer, Bring the Noise weaves together interviews, reviews, essays, and features to create a critical history of the last twenty years of pop culture. Bring the Noise juxtaposes the voices of many of rock and rap's most provocative artists - Morrissey, Public Enemy, Beastie Boys, The Stone Roses, PJ Harvey, Radiohead, The Streets - with Reynolds's own passionate analysis. With all the energy and insight you would expect from the author of Rip It Up And Start Again, Bring the Noise tracks the alternately fraught and fertile relationship between white bohemia and black street music. The selections transmit the immediacy of their moment while offering a running commentary on the broader enduring questions of race and resistance, multiculturalism and division. From grunge to grime, from Manchester to the Dirty South, Bring the Noise chronicles hip hop and alternative rock's competing claims to be the cutting edge of innovation and the voice of opposition in an era of conservative backlash. Alert to both the vivid detail and the big picture, Simon Reynolds has shaped a compelling narrative that cuts across a thrillingly turbulent two-decade period of pop music.

Charm, persuasion, the ability to create illusions: these are some of the many dazzling gifts of the Seducer, the compelling figure who is able to manipulate, mislead and give pleasure all at once. When raised to the level of art, seduction, an indirect and subtle form of power, has toppled empires, won elections and enslaved great minds. In this beautiful, sensually designed book, Greene unearths the two sides of seduction: the characters and the process. Discover who you, or your pursuer, most resembles. Learn, too, the pitfalls of the anti-Seducer. Immerse yourself in the twenty-four manoeuvres and strategies of the seductive process, the ritual by which a seducer gains mastery over their target. Understand how to 'Choose the Right Victim', 'Appear to Be an Object of Desire' and 'Confuse Desire and Reality'. In addition, Greene provides instruction on how to identify victims by type. Each fascinating character and each cunning tactic demonstrates a fundamental truth about who we are, and the targets we've become - or hope to win over. The Art of Seduction is an indispensable primer on the essence of one of history's greatest weapons and the ultimate power trip. From the internationally bestselling author of The 48 Laws of Power, Mastery, and The 33 Strategies Of War.
