Baudelaire in Song-Helen Abbott 2017-11-09 Why do we find it hard to explain what happens when words are set to music? This study looks at the kind of language we use to describe word/music relations, both in the academic literature and in manuals for singers or programme notes prepared by professional musicians. Helen Abbott's critique of word/music relations interrogates overlaps emerging from a range of academic disciplines including translation theory, adaptation theory, word/music theory, as well as critical musicology, metricometry, and cognitive neuroscience. It also draws on other resources-whether adhesion science or financial modelling-to inform a new approach to analysing song in a model proposed here as the assemblage model. The assemblage model has two key stages of analysis. The first stage examines the bonds formed between the multiple layers that make up a song setting (including metre/prosody, form/structure, sound repetition, semantics, and live performance options). The second stage considers the overall outcome of each song in terms of the intensity or stability of the words and music present in a song (accretion/dilution). Taking the work of the major nineteenth-century French poet Charles Baudelaire (1821-67) as its main impetus, the volume examines how Baudelaire's poetry has inspired composers of all genres across the globe, from the 1860s to the present day. The case studies focus on Baudelaire song sets by European composers between 1880 and 1930, specifically Maurice Rollinat, Gustave Charpentier, Alexander Gretchaninov, Louis Vierne, and Alban Berg. Using this corpus, it tests out the assemblage model to uncover what happens to Baudelaire's poetry when it is set to music. It factors in the realities of song as a live performance genre, and reveals which parameters of song emerge as standard for French text-setting, and where composers diverge in their approach.

Actas del XXIII Congreso Internacional de Lingüística y Filología Románica. Volume II: Sección 3: sintaxis, semántica y pragmática-Fernando Sánchez Miret 2015-10-16 The proceedings assemble some 240 papers covering eight sections: 1. phonetics and phonology, 2. morphology, 3. syntax, 4. lexical semantics, 5. editing and textual criticism, 6. rhetoric, poetics and literary theory, 7. applied linguistics, 8. history of linguistics. In addition, they include four plenary lectures and two round table discussions. The papers provide a panorama view of old and new concerns in Romance studies illustrated from various theoretical perspectives and providing an example of what this sector has to contribute to the development of linguistics and literary studies in the 21st century.

The Death Penalty, Volume I-Jacques Derrida 2013-12-04 In this newest installment in Chicago's series of Jacques Derrida's seminars, the renowned philosopher attempts one of his most ambitious goals: the first truly philosophical argument against the death penalty. While much has been written against the death penalty, Derrida contends that Western philosophy is massively, if not always overtly, complicit with a logic in which a sovereign state has the right to take a life. Haunted by this notion, he turns to the key places where such logic has been established—and to the place it has been most effectively challenged: literature. With his signature genius and patient yet dazzling readings of an impressive breadth of texts, Derrida examines everything from the Bible to Plato to Camus to Jean Genet, with special attention to Kant and post-World War II juridical texts, to draw the landscape of death penalty discourses. Keeping clearly in view the death rows and execution chambers of the United States, he shows how arguments surrounding cruel and unusual punishment depend on what he calls an "anesthetical logic," which has also driven the development of death penalty technology from the French guillotine to lethal injection.

Confronting a demand for philosophical rigor, he pursues provocative analyses of the shortcomings of abolitionist discourse. Above all, he argues that the death penalty and its attendant technologies are products of a desire to put an end to one of the most fundamental qualities of our finite existence: the radical uncertainty of when we will die. Arriving at a critical juncture in history—especially in the United States, one of the last Christian-inspired democracies to resist abolition—The Death Penalty is both a timely response to an important ethical debate and a timeless addition to Derrida's esteemed body of work.

Parler, lire, écrire-Gisèle Gelbert 2010-09-30 Depuis une vingtaine d'années, le docteur Gisèle Gelbert, neurologue aphasiologue, élève du linguiste Gustave Guillaume et pratiquant elle-même la rééducation des enfants atteints de troubles sévères du langage, a tracé les contours d'une organisation purement linguistique des dysfonctionnements du langage. Elle a ainsi dégagé une entité, les troubles de type aphasique, et une thérapie efficace, application pratique du schéma des fonctions linguistiques. Dans cet ouvrage, on trouvera la description clinique de ces cas sévères, de ces enfants qui à 7 ans ne parlent pas, à 9 ans ne peuvent ni lire ni écrire, voire de ces adultes qui ne comprennent rien de ce qu'ils ont pourtant bien lu ou sont complètement analphabètes. Grâce à cette méthode unique, on verra comment ces enfants pourront parler, lire en comprenant ce qu'ils lisent, et écrire. Les cinq livres précédents de Gisèle Gelbert ont préparé celui-ci et la voie est ouverte pour les suivants. Neurologue et aphasiologue, Gisèle Gelbert a publié Lire, c'est vivre (1994), Lire, c'est aussi écrire (1998), Le Cerveau des illettrés - Séminaires I (1998), Un alphabet dans la tête (2001), et Lire ou ne pas lire ? Le combat - Séminaires II (2005).

Oral Literature in Africa-Ruth Finnegan 2012-09 Ruth Finnegan's Oral Literature in Africa was first published in 1970, and since then has been widely praised as one of the most important books in its field. Based on years of fieldwork, the study traces the history of storytelling across the continent of Africa. This revised edition makes Finnegan's ground-breaking research available to the next generation of scholars. It includes a new introduction, additional images and an updated bibliography, as well as its original chapters on poetry, prose, "drum language" and drama, and an overview of the social, linguistic and historical background of oral literature in Africa. This book is the first volume in the World Oral Literature Series, an ongoing collaboration between OBP and World Oral Literature Project. A free online archive of recordings and photographs that Finnegan made during her fieldwork in the late 1960s is hosted by the World Oral Literature Project (<http://www.oralliterature.org/collections/rfinnegan001.html>) and can also be accessed from publisher's website.
