La scolarisation des Batwa au Burundi-Gilbert Ndayikengurukiye 2014-05-20 La présente étude analyse de façon critique les arguments traditionnellement mobilisés pour expliquer les échecs des stratégies de scolarisation des Batwa au Burundi. L'hypothèse centrale est que ces stratégies sont construites à partir d'une catégorisation ethnique du groupe Batwa, qui entretient la différence entre ceux-ci et le reste de la population burundaise, ce qui hypothèque toute politique d'intégration, sociale et scolaire. Les résultats montrent que les Batwa eux-mêmes, les autorités publiques, ainsi que la plupart des organisations non gouvernementales, participent à la diffusion d'une telle représentation, ce qui enferme les Batwa dans la marginalité. Rapport Du Groupe de Travail de la Commission Africaine Sur Les Populations/communautés Autochtones-African Commission on Human and Peoples' Rights. Working Group of Experts on Indigenous Populations/Communities 2007 Rapport Du Groupe de Travail de la Commission Africaine Sur Les Populations/communautés Autochtones-African Commission on Human and Peoples' Rights 2009 The African Commission on Human and Peoples' Rights has established a Working Group on Indigenous Populations/Communities that undertook a research and information visit to the Republic of Uganda in July 2006. From that visit this report was created, which gives an account of meetings held with government authorities, civil society organizations, indigenous communities, and other stakeholders. It describes the situation of the indigenous populations in the Republic of Uganda and it makes recommendations to the Government, civil society organizations, and the international community. The report is published both in English and French. Principaux freins à la scolarisation des écoliers Batwa du Rwanda-Nicodème Gacamumakuba 1982 Gender and Citizenship in the Global Age-Amri, Laroussi 2015-03-01 One of the major issues this book examines is what the African experience and identity have contributed to the debate on citizenship in the era of globalisation. The volume presents case studies of different African contexts, illustrating the gendered aspects of citizenship as experienced by African men and women. Citizenship carries manifold gendered aspects and given the distinct gender roles and responsibilities, globalisation affects citizenship in different ways. It further examines new forms of citizenship emerging from the current era dominated by a neoliberal focus. The book is not exclusive in terms of theorisation but its focus on African contexts, with an in-depth analysis taking into consideration local culture and practices and their implications for citizenship, provides a good foundation for further scholarly work on gender and citizenship in Africa. Politische Alphabetisierung und Bewusstseinsbildung-Alphonse Ndabiseruye 2009 Grandeur et décadence de l'Etat algérien-Ahmed Rouadjia 1994-01-01 United Nations Girls' Education Initiative-Fay Chung 2007 Staying Power-A. P. Obura 2008 The Right to Learn-Fay Warrilow 2008 The Batwa communities of the Great Lakes region are mainly former hunter-gatherers who have been evicted from their forest homes over the course of many decades. They now live as a neglected and marginalized minority, often in remote conflict and post-conflict areas. Although Batwa adults and children across the region have identified education as their most important priority, the vast majority have had little if any chance to go to school. Poverty and hunger, and the long distances they often have to travel to access schooling, prevent children from enjoying what is their fundamental human right. Batwa communities have experienced almost every kind of abuse imaginable, particularly in times of war. More generally, they are routinely excluded from participation in public life and are denied their share of public resources. There are many interconnected reasons for this, but poor access to education is a central one. International African Bibliography- 1996 La Condition de L'Africaine en Afrique Noire-F.
